There's a new kid on The Hungry Monkey's block, and it's serving an interesting mix of Mexican and American food. With a menu curated by Ritu Dalmia {Diva Cafe and Kitsch}, the space is co-owned by Vikas Narula. Spread over two floors, it stays in the vicinity of all the Diva's minimalist decor; read black and white pictures on the wall, wooden seating, open air ducts, and bouts of very interesting wall paper. The first floor has a bar {shout out to the brick detailing}, seating, and a live performance space {waiting to see what happens here}, while the second floor houses just a dining area. We're still trying to grasp what cuisine they'd qualify under, since the menu has a fairly random assemblage. But, we're not complaining; anything from the Dalmia kitchen is guaranteed to be good. You can expect salads, Mexican food, burgers, and lots of different types of waffles {which include Waffles with goat cheese, rocket leaves and sundered tomatoes}. And, of course, a fairly exhaustive menu of desserts, each of which sound better than the one before it. Like most new restaurants, they don't have their liquor license as yet, but should have it by the end of this week {or so they say}. We recommend making a reservation.

We have received confirmation on the soon to be launched Urban Food Truck, one of the first in Delhi. Although Hawkers in Vasant Kunj might claim dibbs. They've already curated a menu, and it's said to include omelettes, skillet, and 60 different varieties of cooked eggs, served with sides of sausages, bacon and hash browns. Also on their menu – waffles, crepes, french toasts and all day-diner combos. Wash it all down with sangria {the cocktail version}, fresh juices and milkshakes. Set to launch in the month of August, it will start in Delhi, Noida and Gurgaon, with plans to expand to other cities as well. This food truck will actually travel around the city, and retail at different locations. The icing on the proverbial cake is their mobile based website, which will allow you to keep track of their whereabouts in real time. They also plan on being available for corporate and community events. There's no word on an official launch date, but the first truck will be Gurgaon based. You can count on us for an update! Stay tuned.

Until then, check out their website here.
